Compare the actions of this Ummah today with the Sunnah of Rasulullah (Sallallahu Alayhi Wasallam).

The Sunnat is being purposely attacked and vehemently opposed. And those who invite towards it are killed. Is there no limit to this tremendous wrong and injustice?

If such is the position, what right have Muslims to complain about their present distress? What right hav

Our condolences go out to Hazrat Moulana Muhammad Dudhaat Sahib and his family on the tragic death of his son. He was martyred early on Tuesday morning after an argument broke out when he was mocked for adhering to Islamic principles.

Hazrat Moulana Shabbier Ahmed Saloojee Sahib described the death of Fayaaz as that of a shaheed. “We know that it is very important for us to uphold every sunnat of Sayyidina Rasulullah (Sallallahu alaihi wasallam) Tonight we have the mayyit (funeral) of this shaheed in this blessed month of Ramadan for the first time.”

The Noble Quran also tells us with regards to the martyrs that, Bal Ahyah, they are alive in the court of Allah. Qari Ayyub Ishaq Sahib had the following words of advice:

“While we are all really saddened by the martyrdom of our brother, Fayyaz Kazi, there is no reason to be overly grieved. We should call on people to 'descend' on a hostile environment which could result in more bloodshed, and we should please desist from any encouragement toward this. When faced with Islamophobic remarks or gestures, As Muslims, we should respond to situations with wisdom and foresight and not react with emotion. How did our beloved Prophet (SAW) react when he was insulted, stoned and his shoes soaked in urine? This Ummah will be tried from time to time in various ways, as decreed by Allah Ta'ala. This is a test. Do you imagine that you will enter Jannah while yet there has not come upon you the like of what has come upon the Prophet (SAW)? (Baqarah, V.214)

May Allah grant the Marhoom Jannatul Firdose and grant the bereaved family comfort and patience. Ameen.
